Q4

To reach our collective potential, we must work together to build up Ottawa. That requires a council in which each member commits to city wide leadership. What is your intended approach to collaboration with council, city staff and economic partners?

I strongly believe that a councillor must have a vision for his or her ward as well as a vision for the city as a whole. This allows citizens to know where their councillor will stand on future issues.

For me, it is also a way of approaching the issues with my future colleagues in a proposing and building mode rather than in a reactive mode.

By having open discussions, it is easier to understand the objectives that everyone wants to achieve. If you focus on the desired result and not the means, it is possible to find the best solutions.

What key characteristics and skills do you possess that make you a great leader and ambassador for the city of Ottawa, and the national capital region?

As an ambassador for our city and region, the aim is to raise awareness and build strong links.

Having served on the executive of the board of directors of the French Chamber of Commerce in Canada, Quebec section, I understand very well how to establish links and what partners are looking for.

In addition, through my background, I have established links in France and in the international Francophonie, a gateway that is under-exploited by our region, even though it is rich in potential.

Q6

What are your top three priorities for Ottawa's future?

Safety in all aspects

Housing, affordability for tenants and owners

Leading change to put residents at the heart of decisions
