Q4

To reach our collective potential, we must work together to build up Ottawa. That requires a council in which each member commits to city wide leadership. What is your intended approach to collaboration with council, city staff and economic partners?

Radical collaboration is needed to begin the economic recovery that our city experienced during the pandemic. I have been a collaborator with a proven ability in bringing people together. I am committed to working with all members of council, city staff and our economic partners in ensuring that our city's residents thrive as we look forward to the future together. In my previous capacity within the region, I have championed equity, diversity and inclusion, and understand cultural sensitivities.

Q5

What key characteristics and skills do you possess that make you a great leader and ambassador for the city of Ottawa, and the national capital region?

I hold multiple career disciplines with expertise in the deliverance of Excellence in customer service, travel & tourism, and transportation. My experience crosses several industries and platforms.

I have a strong background in strategic planning, fundraising, business development, project management, stakeholder engagement, and change management.

I am a devoted community leader who has always believed in the power of public service. My diverse background brings over 20 years of progressively senior leadership roles in politics, business and public relations.

My passion for my community, its businesses, and the people who live and work here continues to motivate me in building a city that everyone is proud to call home.

Q6

What are your top three priorities for Ottawa's future?

Supporting the economic drivers that feed and provide us with a stream of life and stability to our city and region.

Where our city attracts visitors from all over the world with our vibrant festivals, attractions, conservation areas, historical sites and events.

I hope to create a supportive business environment, a vibrant lifestyle for our residents, that welcomes all people and a city that supports its residents and businesses in thriving - for the years to come. Where basic needs are met and supported. Where we save people time by connecting them to where they want to be in a world-class city that we are proud to call home.
